

Carrington MacDuffie Bio

Carrington MacDuffie is an award-winning voice actor, singer/songwriter, poet and performing artist who makes her living with the spoken word. With a BA in English from Boston University, she has enjoyed a lifelong involvement in the book business, from mass market fiction to small literary presses, as editor, author, narrator and publisher. She has narrated over 200 audiobooks, performed voiceover for national TV spots, and voiced endless characters and dialects in stories and video games. Clients range from Random House to the Smithsonian to World of Warcraft. MacDuffie's versatility has earned her narration awards, international publication of articles and poetry, and broadcast of her spoken word.

Ms. MacDuffie's one-woman spoken-word show has been staged at theatres, art museums and festivals in LA and the Pacific Northwest. In 2009 her audiobook/record album Many Things Invisible was nominated for 2 Audies. She recently released a new album of original songs, Only an Angel, catchy soulful material recorded in Austin, Texas, with seasoned country musicians.

Her narration work has influenced her songwriting, and her singing has influenced her narration work, in terms of a particularly mellifluous delivery, and genuine passion balanced with terrific vocal control. She loves her work!
